

From: Jim Caldwell
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/20/02 8:57pm
Subject: Settlement

Where do states Attorneys General get the authority to meddle in interstate commerce? Apparently from the past corrupt Reno Justice Department under the impeached rapist president, they along with several individual Attorneys General seeking political fame and fortune, took it upon themselves to successfully shake down the tobacco industry.

Now they are attempting to do the same to Micro Soft. Hopefully the current Justice Department will stand up and do what is right. It is time to get big government, and states Attorneys General out of the board rooms and return business to entrepreneurs and risk takers; not handcuff them.

I want to buy what I want. Not being a computer nut, I like things simple and easy to understand and use.

James E. Caldwell